

Core brief

Thursday 20 February 2020

Introduction

This issue of Core Brief details information on a report issued recognising cleanliness and safety progress at QEUH.

New report recognises cleanliness and safety progress at QEUH

The Queen Elizabeth University Hospital and the Royal Hospital for Children have been positively recognised for progress in cleanliness and compliance with infection control measures following an unannounced visit from Healthcare Improvement Scotland (HIS).

The visit, which took place in November 2019, saw a group of external inspectors audit a number of areas and wards within the hospitals, and follows a previous visit in January 2019 which made a number of recommendations. Click here to read more.

Are your contact details up-to-date? Click here to check