What is Maternal and Paternal Mental Health?

Maternal and paternal mental health refers to parent's mental health during pregnancy and the first year after birth, or as the support service dictates.

This includes mental health and wellbeing issues or illnesses existing before pregnancy as well as mental health and wellbeing issues or illnesses which develop for the first time or are greatly exacerbated in the perinatal period.

This can be mild, moderate or severe which can require different kinds of care and treatment. This guide aims to encourage early intervention, prevention and support as crisis can happen. In the guide there is a mix of phone numbers, emails and web links.

Top Tips for looking after your Mental Health

As many as 1 in 5 women and 1 in 10 men are affected by mental ill health during pregnancy, and the year after birth.

Be open and honest

About how you are feeling with your partner, family, friends and health professionals. It's ok not to be ok.

Talking

Talking to a supportive trusted adult is good for our mental health. If you feel things are building up talk to your GP health visitor or midwife.

Connect

You may have less social time and not see many people. Find out what is available in your community to provide social contact with other parents.

Looking after yourself

Take care of yourself, and have some 'me' time to do the things that you enjoy. If you feel good, you'll feel more able to manage and care for your baby.

Accept any help offered

It's hard being a parent 24/7 and you're allowed time off.
